Description

The European Athletics Women Leadership Award recognise and celebrate women leaders in Athletics. The main aims are to highlight the invaluable contributions women make on the local and national levels and to inspire others to work for the benefit of the sport.

Ultimately, we hope the awards will help to change attitudes and increase the number of women serving our sport.

Candidates

The awards should be given for outstanding contributions to the sport by women of any age working as coaches, competition officials, club volunteers, event organizers, journalists, administrators, Member Federation leaders, etc. The recognised contributions may be a single activity, a recent period of work or a career-long commitment. It is not intended for the award to reward accomplishments in competition.

Winners do not need to be nationally or internationally famous and, indeed, one of the objectives of these awards is to raise awareness of the work of lesser-known women leaders throughout the sport, even at a local level.

Note: An individual may win the award one time only. The awards are given biennially in odd-numbered years and federations can only nominate one person per year (Member Federations should not nominate previously awarded individuals).
